Persuasive Speech Topic: Should College Athletes be Paid for Playing

The topic for my persuasive speech will be over whether college athletes should get compensation in the form of money for their time and effort put into playing sports. This has been a hotly debated subject recently, as student athletes earn millions of dollars in revenues each year for their respective universities. On the other hand, these same student athletes also get valuable scholarships which either entirely or at the least partly pay for their education. Throughout my persuasive presentation, I will look to argue the latter, as there are many long and short term benefits alike available to these individuals.
